Parents Said	We Did
Could persistently absent pupils be more involved in the attendance and punctuality meetings so that they have the opportunity to share with the Attendance Team reasons for non-attendance?	Pupils will now always be invited to each attendance meeting. An additional section has been added to the structure of the meeting to gain the thoughts and views of the pupil. Assistant Head of House training has included quality assurance to ensure pupils are part of the conversation at school level intervention.
Could the pupil planners be streamlined, if needed at all, to ensure that only essential information is recorded. This would be in addition to the information shared on Class Charts, to improve communication between parents/carers, pupils and staff. In a digital world, are the paper planners necessary?	For the next academic year, the pupil planners will be streamlined to ensure that only essential information is included. Consideration if the planner is required at all has been made but a possibility of them being sold at a small cost to those who want one in addition to those with limited Wi-Fi access at home to receive a paper planner free of charge.
