Parents Said	We Did
Can there be more Sixth Form mentoring of younger pupils?	We have expanded our Sixth Form mentoring programme by increasing the number of reading and numeracy mentors, providing more opportunities for Sixth Form students to support younger pupils across the school.
The hybrid model of Parents' Evenings works well, and parents value having a mixture of in-person and online appointments.	We have maintained our successful hybrid Parents' Evening model for the next academic year, continuing to offer a combination of in-person and online appointments to provide greater flexibility for families.
In some subjects, such as Art, project-based homework helps pupils build on their learning over a longer period.	Directors of Learning have been asked to introduce project-based homework opportunities where appropriate, enabling pupils to develop their knowledge, creativity and independence through extended learning beyond the classroom.
